Opportunity for Confirmation

The Church of England offers this as a way of 'going public' about our Christian faith and becoming an active member of the church. There is a Confirmation Service this term (9 June, 10.30am) at the University Church with the Bishop of Oxford, so please let the Chaplain know if you would be interested in taking part.

Serving in the Community

Would you like to give a little time each month to a community project that makes a difference to people's lives in Oxford? Please contact the Chaplain.

Teddy Hall Christian Union

This is a small and friendly group that meets weekly to enjoy refreshments, explore the Bible, pray and encourage each other. Anyone is welcome: committed Christians or those who simply want to investigate Christianity.

About the Speakers

Father Nick King is a Jesuit priest who is currently assistant Catholic Chaplain to the University. He has always been a teacher, at both secondary and tertiary level. For many years he taught in South Africa (at the most interesting time in that country's history), then for many more years, taught New Testament and Greek in Oxford's Theology Department. He has also translated the entire Bible from Greek and written a number of books on the implications of Scripture for human living. He is passionate about many sports, especially cricket, though his doctor has insisted that he grow up and retire.

Alison Webster is Social Responsibility Adviser for the Oxford Diocese and responsible for managing a small team of specialist resource people (and many networks of volunteers), who between them are a resource to the Diocese on a range of issues: rural and urban life, the environment, health and social care issues (including the spiritual care of older people), world development and international affairs, poverty and disability issues, as well as domestic violence and abuse. The Board of Mission calls this area of work 'Making a Difference in the World' and it combines campaigning and social action with contemplation, theological reflection and pastoral care.

Rev. Dr Liz Hoare is tutor for spiritual formation at Wycliffe Hall Theological College and teaches in areas of practical theology. She lives in a small village outside Oxford where theology is a lived experience at home, with friends and neighbours, five chickens and a dog. She is a keen advocate of spiritual direction and prayer accompaniment to help us grow in the Christian life. She was previously in parish ministry with her husband in North Yorkshire. She enjoys writing and has just completed a book about contemporary women who write about spirituality.

Father Alexis Leproux has been a priest of the Diocese of Paris since 1997. He studied theology in Brussels, Jerusalem, and Rome. His doctorate thesis focused on the question of education in Antiquity, seen from the Book of Wisdom. He has been a Chaplain at the University of Paris (Sorbonne) and launched a new cursus of Christian training for young adults (18-30 years old) called EVEN (Ecole du Verbe Eternel et Nouveau). Pastor of a Parisian parish since 2015, he became Vicar General of the Diocese of Paris in September 2018, in charge of higher education and Chairman of the College des Bernardins.

Prof. Ard Louis is Professor of Theoretical Physics at the University of Oxford, where he leads an interdisciplinary research group studying problems on the border between chemistry, physics and biology. He also writes and speaks widely on science and faith, for which in 2013 he was elected a member of the International Society for Science and Religion. He recently made the four-part documentary Why Are We Here with David Malone and appeared in The Story of God with Morgan Freeman, giving him an Erdős–Bacon number of 6. He was born in the Netherlands, but grew up in Gabon. His hobbies include molecular gastronomy.
